

SKINS FOR MOBILE COMMUNICATION DEVICES

Abstract of the Disclosure

A skin is provided for the user interface of a mobile communication device. The skin is obtained by providing a data file including information defining characteristics of the skin, providing a markup language style sheet describing a manner in which data is to be represented on a display of the mobile communication device, and transforming the data file into a markup language document according to the markup language style sheet.

2017.04.08 14:00:00